CALM

Green is resting but no standstill, tranquility and contemplation in green surroundings.

Growing and flourishing in nature are decelerated processes which we can not notice in the hustle and bustle of our time. Life does not always have to be tension, excitement and competition; life can also be calm, with quiet joy, endless leisure, relaxing meditation and with hopeful dreams.

The dream and the hope for a happy awakening.

Resurrection in the perfect serenity of a Japanese garden, in the silence of a full moon night in the mountains, in the silence of the night without any noises of cars, squeaking trams and drunken late returners.

Ordered rest can be beneficial but it carries the thorn of compulsion that you have to pull first.

A calm day is not a lost day if you can enjoy the quietness.

The calm before the storm?
